The public has recognized the Liberty "Six," from the first, as a high-quality car, of moderate size and price. Such recognition was accorded the Liberty "Six" because of its goodness and its design, which gives unusual consideration to the owner's comfort.

Is proclaimed in Liberty appearance. It is quickly recognized because of the difference in the way it rides and drives. It is borne out by the economy of Liberty operation and upkeep, and is proved by Liberty performance. The Liberty "Six" is characterized by an ease of control not heretofore experienced in motor cars.

Correctly proportioned, scientifically designed springs; proper balance and weight distribution produce an unusual riding comfort (whether one or five persons are carried); and the Liberty six-cylinder motor, designed to pull steadily at low speeds and still flexible enough to accelerate with extraordinary quickness, demonstrates amazing power without noticeable effort. In every detail the Liberty proves its Goodness. Continued experience emphasizes the Liberty owner's satisfaction.

How well this complete satisfaction has been realized is shown by the thousands of enthusiastic letters from drivers of Liberty cars, all of whom have found a distinct difference in the Liberty "Six"—a difference that has lost none of its attraction for them since the first Liberty cars were put into service.

Just to ride in and drive the Liberty "Six" will win from you the same appreciation of unusual goodness. Designed as a moderately sized car in which the riding and driving comfort was the first thought, the Liberty "Six" has established itself in public opinion in a remarkably short time as distinctively a quality car—of rare good taste and surprising value.

To secure satisfaction of driving such a car is testified freely by those who know the charm of Liberty "Six" ownership. And they express simply the intensified enjoyment which you may discover in your first ride.

So marked is the instant revelation of Liberty quality that a great many Liberty sales are closed in the first fifteen minutes of demonstration.

Thus is Liberty "Six," expressing your taste and motor car requirements in six attractive types of bodies, prepared for your most fastidious scrutiny.

We present this car of unusual beauty and goodness secure in our knowledge that your own good judgment and appreciation will agree in our every statement.
